Statement:

Alaska has seen an incredible change over the last two years since we last found ourselves in an election season. During that time I have been working hard ensuring that your voice is heard in Juneau. Right now appropriate policies with a focus on long-term fiscal stability are essential for our future.

State government is too large. My first four years in office, I worked alongside my colleagues to slow the growth of government from its previous levels of continued growth. This term, I sat on our Finance Committee and Chaired two Department subcommittees that saw reductions of double digits with one seeing reductions over two years of over 50 percent. In total, our Unrestricted General Fund decreased substantially, but please be assured that even though we reduced spending over the last couple of years I understand we must do more. We need to restructure and rethink how we deliver government services, and I introduced legislation to do just that and will continue pursuing those changes.

Public Safety was also in the spotlight recently. I fought hard for policies that would not put citizens or our police officers in undue danger. One policy I succeeded in passing requires people on parole or probation that are ordered to refrain from alcohol get a red stripe on their license.

There is more to do and as an experienced policymaker with a proven track record fighting for you, I ask for your VOTE this November to keep me fighting for you.
