Leadership is about earning trust before asking for it. My commitment has always been to serve with integrity, courage and common sense. I will bring those same values to every decision, always putting Alaska, my community and our Constitution first.

Position Statement

Service has never been a slogan for me—it has been my life.

As a fourth-generation Alaskan, retired Chief of Police, small business owner, and community leader, I have spent my career protecting families, solving problems, and serving others.

I am running for the Alaska State House because our state deserves principled leaders who put Alaskans first, not politics.

I believe government exists to protect our freedoms—not replace personal responsibility or the rights of Alaska families. I will fight to protect the full statutory Permanent Fund Dividend, defend parental rights, expand school choice, uphold our constitutional freedoms, protect the Second Amendment, preserve fairness in girls' sports, and stand with law enforcement, seniors, veterans, and working families.

Alaska's future depends on responsible leadership, fiscal discipline, and a strong private-sector economy. I support developing our natural resources, expanding affordable and reliable energy, improving roads and public safety infrastructure, reducing unnecessary government spending, and creating opportunities for small businesses to grow and good-paying jobs to thrive.

Alaska's future should be determined by Alaskans. The values that guided me were shaped by faith, integrity, hard work, personal responsibility, and my family's tradition of military service. Those values have guided every chapter of my life and will guide every vote I cast. I will bring integrity, accountability, and a servant's heart to Juneau. It would be an honor to earn your trust, your vote, and the opportunity to continue serving the people of Alaska.
