Position Statement

House district 9 is where Anchorage ends and Alaska begins. My family and I are privileged to call this place home. Rosie, my incredible wife and fourth-generation Alaskan, has taught in Anchorage public schools for nearly a decade. We're blessed with two children in elementary school who delight living next to Chugach State Park and Potter Marsh.

I love Alaska and Alaska has been good to me. It's where I met my wife and built a career in natural resources. And my biggest hope is that my kids and others can realize their dreams here as well.

But we have some challenges. Our gas supply in Cook Inlet is dwindling. Without a reliable and affordable alternative, increasing energy costs will harm families, businesses, and everything else. We have to solve this problem and not allow petty politics to punish everyday Alaskans.

We also need the best teachers in our schools. Without a strong education system, our families will look elsewhere for their children's future. We must ensure that our education dollars reach the classroom.

Alaska has abundant energy and many of the minerals needed for modern life. With smart policy and needed infrastructure, we can unleash Alaska's full potential.

The reality is that we can't cut or tax our way to prosperity. Passing responsible budgets and focusing on growing our economy is the best way to reverse Alaska's decline. This is my pledge and it would be my honor to represent you!
