Other (Biographical Information):
I came to Alaska through my service in the U.S. Army in 1983, fulfilling a dream I had held since I was 10 years old. From the moment I arrived, Alaska captured my heart, and I knew this was where I was meant to build my life. Over the years, I have been honored to serve Alaskans in many capacities, always guided by a heart for service and commitment to making a positive difference. I believe in the strength, resilience, and spirit of the people of Alaska.

Position Statement

I believe public service is a calling rooted in integrity, accountability, and servant leadership. My commitment has always been to represent the people with transparency, respect, and a willingness to listen before leading.

Alaska's future depends on strong families, thriving communities, responsible stewardship of our resources, safe neighborhoods, and an economy that creates opportunity for everyone. I support practical, common sense solutions that strengthen our education system, support small businesses, care for our veterans and seniors, empower first responders, and expand access to innovative, evidence informed healthcare options.

I believe government works best when puts responsive to the people it serves, fiscally responsible, and focused on creating opportunities rather than unnecessary barriers. Every decision should be guided by what will leave Alaska stronger for the next generation.

My promise is simple: to lead with courage, serve with humility, and always put the people of Alaska first. Together, we can build a healthier, stronger, and more prosperous future for all Alaskans.

Together, we have the opportunity to build an even brighter future one that honors our pioneers, strengthens our communities, and create lasting opportunities for generations to come. Serving Alaska has been one of the greatest privileges of my life, and I remain committed to doing all I can to help our state thrive.
