Sara served two terms in the Alaska State Legislature, sitting on the House Resources, Labor and Commerce, Transportation, and Finance Committees. She worked in a bipartisan, bicameral effort to update Alaska's consent laws, raised the age of child marriage to 16, and closed a loophole for marriage as a defense for rape. Sara also focused on education, championing legislation to increase internet access in rural schools, and passing safe banking legislation for the cannabis industry. Sara lives in Anchorage with her husband Alex and three young children.

Position Statement

As a proud Alaskan, I'm Sara Rasmussen and I'm running for Lieutenant Governor to bring proven, experienced leadership to the executive team that Alaskans deserve.

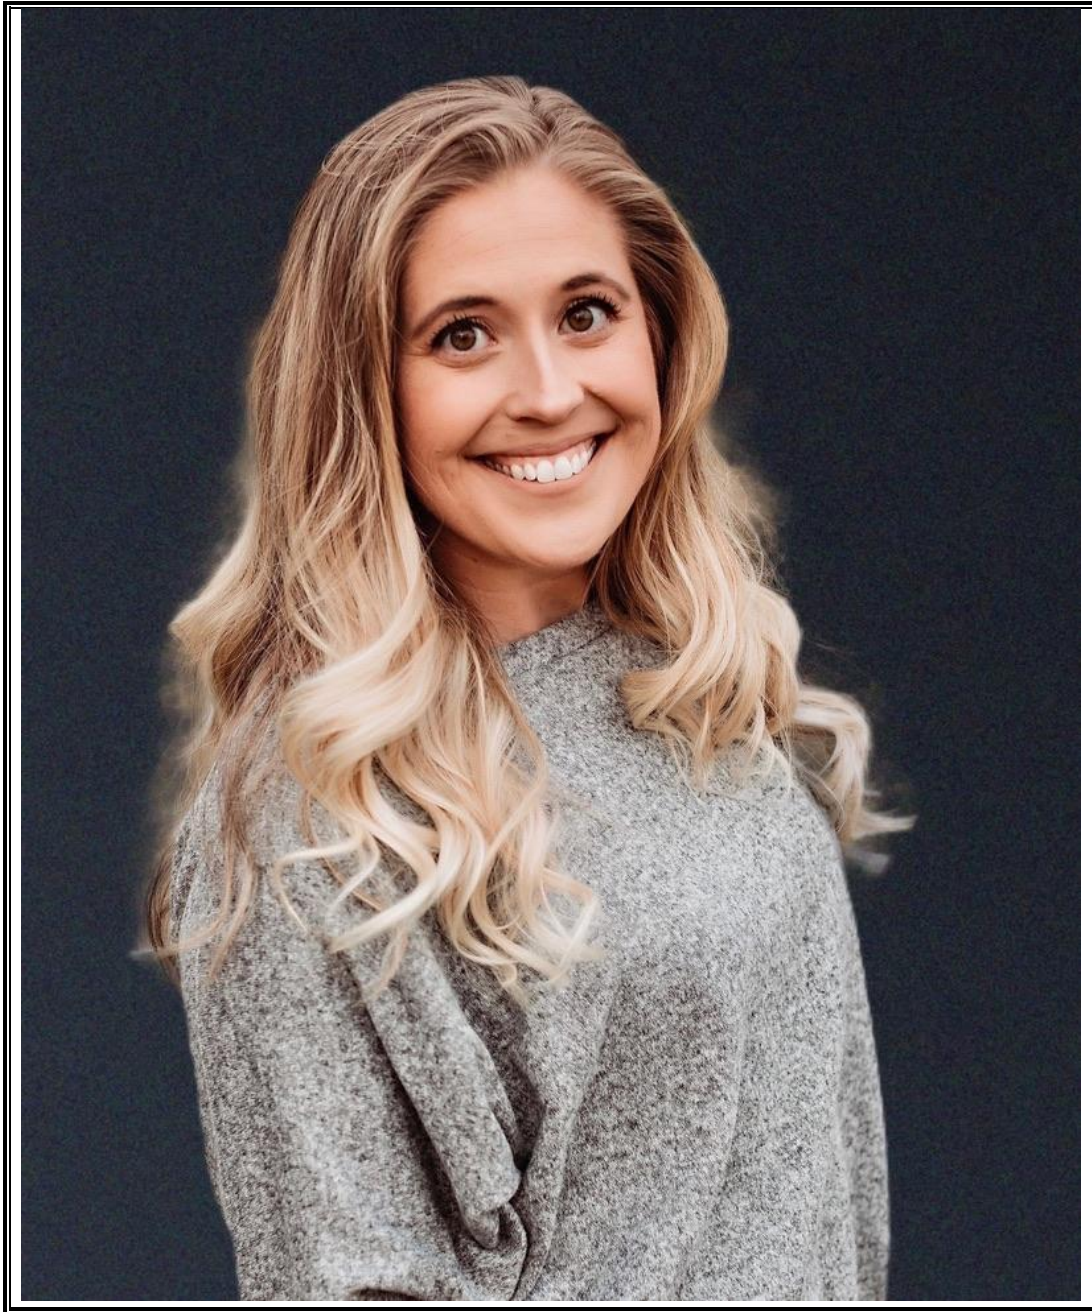

Alaska cannot afford on the job training in the Governor's Office — we need leaders who know how state government works and can deliver results from day one. That's why I'm honored to join Lesil McGuire, whose sixteen years in the Legislature and leadership and my tenure as a member of the House of Representatives reflect the steady, experienced leadership our state needs.

My service in the House focused on pro development policies that create jobs while protecting our lands and communities. I led bipartisan, bicameral efforts to update Alaska's domestic violence statutes, modernize our age of consent laws, close the marriage defense loophole for rape and strengthened protections for victims of sexual assault and other violent crimes. I championed expanded internet access for rural schools and helped pass safe banking legislation to protect small businesses in Alaska's cannabis industry. Those accomplishments demonstrate a record of turning ideas into practical policy.

My private sector experience gives me firsthand understanding of workforce needs, job creation and regulatory realities. Together with Lesil, we will prioritize affordable energy, public safety and providing for Alaska's next generations in support of every Alaskan. We will lead with experience, not experimentation.

Alaskans face urgent challenges; we need a team that will govern effectively from day one. I ask for your support so we can build a safer, stronger, more prosperous Alaska for all.
