Position Statement

I am running for Lieutenant Governor because I believe Alaska deserves leaders who bring people together, solve problems, and lead with integrity.

I have spent my career bringing together business, government, and Alaska communities to solve complex challenges. That experience has shaped my approach to leadership: listen first, build trust, and focus on results that improve the lives of Alaskans.

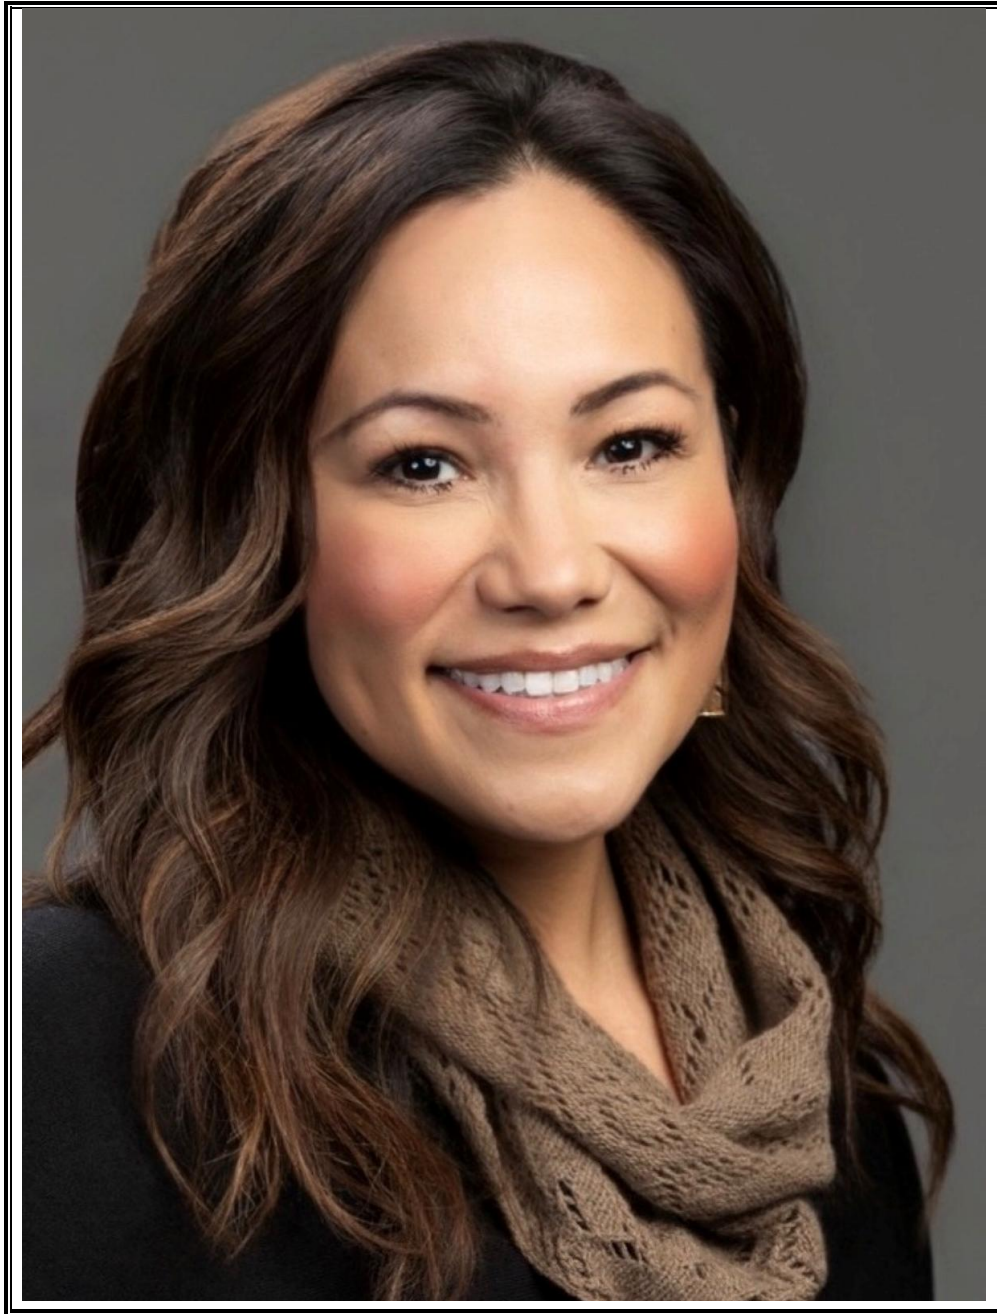

As Lieutenant Governor, I will work to strengthen confidence in our elections by supporting secure, accessible voting and maintaining accurate voter rolls. I believe government should be transparent, accountable, and responsive to the people it serves.

I will also be a strong advocate for policies that grow Alaska's economy through responsible resource development, affordable energy, healthy fisheries, and opportunities for small businesses and working families. Every Alaskan—whether they live in a city, a hub community, or a remote village—deserves the opportunity to succeed.

I am proud of my Alaska Native heritage, my family's deep roots in Alaska's resource industries, and my record of bringing people together across different backgrounds and perspectives. I believe our differences strengthen our state when we approach one another with respect and a shared commitment to Alaska's future.

I will bring experience, integrity, and a strong work ethic to public office. I offer a strong commitment to serve all Alaskans with humility, respect, and an unwavering focus on building a stronger Alaska for generations to come.
