I'm not a career politician. I'm a hardworking Alaskan who is proud to call this state home and will fight to keep it that way. I want to bring energy and attention to the critical issues facing our families. We need real plans put into motion. I'm running because I genuinely believe I can help make this state better for the next generation.

Position Statement

I am a born and raised Palmer Alaskan running for State Senate because I believe in putting families first and protecting the Alaska way of life. As a chemical operator on the North Slope, I understand how important our energy industry is. Good paying jobs and responsible resource development matter to families like mine. I support full monetization of our natural gas through projects like Alaska LNG so we can create stable revenue, keep energy costs down, and fund essential services.

As the son of longtime Mat-Su educators and a graduate with a degree in Elementary Education, I am committed to properly funding our schools. Our teachers deserve support and our kids deserve a strong education that prepares them to thrive here at home. Mat-su families should be comfortable and excited with the educators and options available to them.

As someone who grew up on the water, I will fight to protect our world class fisheries and salmon runs that sustain so many families, including my own. Fishing has always been a big part of my life and I want to make sure future generations can experience what we've all learned to love.

Alaskans face real challenges with the high cost of living, housing, and energy. I will work every day so people don't just have to live here, but can flourish here. We need leaders who honor faith, family, and hard work. It'd be an honor to fight for my fellow Alaskans.
